Assessment
Ronald's designs are creative and unique and is fresh to our eyes. He has great photoshop skills and can layout impressive templates in no time. Ronald is constantly looking for challenges that will take his skill the next level.

IQ Test: 113 - Visual Mathematician

You have a strong ability to process visual-spatial and mathematical information. These skills combined with your strengths in logic are what make you a Visual Mathematician.

You're able to understand patterns visually and in numbers. That means your mind can create a mental picture for any problem. In addition to that skill, you possess an intelligence that allows you to apply math to that picture, too. That helps you manipulate multiple parts of the picture (or problem) to come up with a solution. You have many skills that are critical to success and problem-solving. Your talents help you understand the "big picture," which is partly why people may turn to you for direction especially in the workplace.

Team Roles: 88 – Coordinator

According to your score you seem to naturally gravitate towards the role of Coordinator in a group. This means that you like to organize tasks, assign them, and keep tabs on the teamwork being accomplished.

Coordinators are the people who keep precise notes, know exactly where the project is at any given point in time and call status meetings when needed. Being analytical organizers, Coordinators clarify goals, remove ambiguity from complex and difficult tasks, and hand out "to-do" lists or deadlines to team members. Highly structured, mature and confident, Coordinators juggle priorities, keep track of the chronological order of task execution, tasks division and various assignments, and ensure the availability of resources - human, material or informational - when organizing a project. In short, good delegation skills and a keen sense of justice allow these indispensable team members to coordinate all efforts and implement decisions.
